Brochures, media and websites of the Myanmar Japan Thilawa Development (MJTD) must have more attractions to catch the interest of international investors: Vice-Senior General

State Administration Council Vice-Chair Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Vice-Senior General Soe Win meets the Thilawa Special Economic Zone Management Committee officials in Thanlyin Township on 6 May 2022.

UPON completion of projects in phases, SEZ will create more than 300,000 jobs, up from 13,300 at present, said State Administration Council Vice-Chair Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Commander-in-Chief (Army) Vice-Senior General Soe Win while meeting officials from the Thilawa Special Economic Zone Management Committee yesterday afternoon.

First, the Chairman of the management committee, U Ye Naing Tun, reported to the Vice-Senior General on the progress of the zone and work undertakings. Chairman of the Myanmar Special Economic Zone Work Committee of the zone Union Minister for Commerce Dr Pwint San presented the current situation of the zone, efforts of the State in solving the problems, and future plans.

After coordinating the reports, the Vice-Senior General said that more than 17,000 Myanmar shareholders from nine Myanmar companies and three Japanese companies operate the Thilawa SEZ established in the 2015-2016 financial year with 10 per cent investment from the Myanmar government, 41 per cent from Myanmar citizens company, 10 per cent from the Japanese government and 39 per cent from Japanese companies, respectively. With regard to the work procedures, the management committee needs to coordinate necessary measures for implementing the work projects in the remaining land plots among the sold land plots of more than 5,000 acres of allowed land areas. Upon completion of the projects in phases, the SEZ will create more than 300,000 jobs, up from 13,300 at present. Hence, it is necessary to coordinate the various measures systematically.

The Vice-Senior General pointed out that the spending of funds of the SEZ must follow the monetary policy in line with the SEZ Law 2014 and the notification 12/2022 issued by the Central Bank of Myanmar dated 3-4-2022. It is necessary to prove the firmness of monetary policy for forthcoming investors. Brochures, media and websites of Myanmar Japan Thilawa Development (MJTD) must have more attractions to catch the interest of international investors. Necessary assistance must be given to the companies showing interest in processing Seintal-mango and butter bean in the zone through the CAN system. If each company or each zone generates electricity from solar and wind power to curb the purchase of electricity in foreign exchange for the Thilawa SEZ, electricity consumption of the State and private companies will reduce.

But, the volume of demand by those countries is small, according to the domestic bean market.

Analyze complete apology in daily life

All persons in the daily routine have experienced committing mistakes. At a time when they decide something for their life, they might face mistakes. If so, they made excuses for their mistakes. In fact, everybody will have right and wrong as a universal truth.

But they have to analyze the nature of the apology. Do they apologize to themselves for the mistakes? Do they keep the promise not to make more mistakes in the future? Do they try to keep the promise for the mistakes? Indeed, everybody needs to sustain their promises for the mistakes.

Everybody commits mistakes not only over themselves but on others. These mistakes were made intentionally or unintentionally. Whatever it may be, if they remember their mistakes, they must apologize to the losers for their mistakes. So, it is not enough the word sorry. It is inadequate to use the word apology.

They have to express their apology to others for committing their mistakes heartily. Whenever they know they have made mistakes, they should not delay in saying their word of apology to the losers. But such a word must be a complete apology which means not just a promise. Those making mistakes must change their behaviours in line with the apology with an arrangement not to make such kinds of mistakes anymore. They have to keep the promise without fail deeply.

A complete apology is a nature not to repeat similar mistakes. So, those who make mistakes and those who suffer the impacts of mistakes should understand the nature of the world and the nature of the apology. Both of them need to forgive the mistakes and keep the promise not to do so. If so, both sides can solve the problems easily.

should understand the nature of the world and the nature of the apology. Both of them need to forgive the mistakes and keep the promise not to do so. If so, both sides can solve the problems easily. If mistake-makers do not repeat similar mistakes and apologize to victims of mistakes, if the victims of mistakes uphold forgiveness for their losses, society will be pleasant. If a complete apology flourishes in society, people from society will build a better world.

All the persons commit many mistakes in their life. At first, they have to apologize to themselves. Moreover, they have to analyze the root cause of mistakes with the optimism of changing their behaviours and mindsets to be able to enjoy a better future. Let's make a complete apology along with the life of society participants.

UN meets to help reverse tourism slump

ABDULLA Shahid, president of the 76th session of the UN General Assembly (UNGA), on Wednesday highlighted the need to build a more sustainable, resilient, and responsible global tourism sector as part of the "long journey" to recover from COVID-19.

At the first-ever High-Level Thematic Debate on Sustainable Tourism held at the UN headquarters in New York, Shahid said that the COVID-19 pandemic halted the entire tourism industry, dealing a "devastating blow to the global economy".

"In 2019, prior to the pandemic, tourism contributed 3.5 trillion U.S. dollars to global GDP. The precipitous drop during the pandemic is estimated to have cost up to 120 million jobs," the UNGA president noted.

Though easy to sum up the devastation in numbers, capturing the overall toll on people, communities and services, is much harder, particularly for many small island states and least developed countries, which remain heavily reliant on tourism to fuel public spending, he said.

Looking beyond the numbers, tourism plays a deeply human role: "Travel and tourism connect and unite us... builds bridges and facilitates inter-cultural exchanges... (and) fosters peace and solidarity across continents and borders," Shahid added.

Inventive efforts were made

Inventive efforts were made to help tourism weather two years of COVID, including "travel bubbles," "vaccine passports" and "resilient corridors".

Visitors take pictures of the gold-plated stupa at Wat Phra That Doi Suthep Buddhist temple in Chiang Mai, Thailand in November 2020. PHOTO: AFP

"As the pandemic wanes, the tourism sector is rebounding," he said, speaking of "the human need to connect, to explore, to experience." "However, as it rebounds, it is important that we reflect on its future direction."

Shahid noted that tourism is important economically, but its effects on the planet, such as carbon emissions, oceans brimming with plastic, and human impacts on ecosystems and wildlife, must also be considered. "We know that many of the communities and historic sites around the world that are beloved by tourists are climate and disaster prone and need support to build resilience," he added.

According to the UN Environment Programme's Green Economy Report, a "business-as-usual" scenario predicts that by 2050, tourism will generate an increase of 154 per cent in energy consumption for the sector, 131 per cent in greenhouse gas emissions, 152 per cent in water consumption, and 251 per cent in solid waste disposal.

"We cannot allow this to continue. We must not reboot global tourism in a business-as-usual manner; we must be more ambitious than that, more responsible than that," Shahid said.

Throughout the discussions, Shahid encouraged participants to address their commitments under the Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Agreement on Climate Change, and enhance the inclusion and empowerment of women, youth, indigenous and other marginalized communities.

"Today, I call on all stakeholders to seize every opportunity to transform the tourism sector; and to target a more sustainable, inclusive and responsible approach," he said.

Current energy crisis Zurab Pololikashvili, chief of the World Tourism Organization, commented that the current energy crisis contributes to the vulnerability of the tourism sector, while asserting that investments in tourism are also investments in peace.

Tourism was especially important to the livelihoods of women, youth, and rural communities, he said, urging for a sustainable balance between the short-term needs of tourists and the long-term needs of communities.

Pololikashvili said tourism can drive positive change, and commended the various sectors for participating in the "landmark" sustainability conversation.

Sameh Wahba, director of the World Bank's Urban, Disaster Risk Management, Resilience and Land Global Practice, spoke about inclusive, resilient, and sustainable cities. According to him, tourism creates opportunities for rural communities, small businesses and women, since it employs 10 per cent of the global workforce.

WHO estimates 14.9 million excess COVID associated deaths in 2020, 2021

NEW estimates from the World Health Organization (WHO) show that the full death toll associated directly or indirectly with the COVID-19 pandemic between 1 January 2020 and 31 December 2021 was approximately 14.9 million (range 13.3 million to 16.6 million).

"These sobering data not only point to the impact of the pandemic but also to the need for all countries to invest in more resilient health systems that can sustain essential health services during crises, including stronger health information systems," said Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, WHO Director-General.

"WHO is committed to working with all countries to strengthen their health information systems to generate better data for better decisions and better outcomes."

Excess mortality is calculated

Excess mortality is calculated as the difference between the number of deaths that have occurred and the number that would be expected in the absence of the pandemic based on data from earlier years. "Excess mortality includes deaths associated with COVID-19 directly (due to the disease) or indirectly (due to the pandemic's impact on health systems and society). Deaths linked indirectly to COVID-19 are attributable to other health conditions for which people were unable to access prevention and treatment because health systems were overburdened by the pandemic," the WHO said in a press release.

The estimated number of excess deaths can be influenced also by deaths averted during the pandemic due to lower risks of certain events, like motor-vehicle accidents or occupational injuries.

Most of the excess deaths (84 per cent) are concentrated in South-East Asia, Europe, and the Americas. Some 68 per cent of excess deaths are concentrated in just 10 countries globally. Middle-income countries account for 81 per cent of the 14.9 million excess deaths (53 per cent in lower-middle-income countries and 28 per cent in upper-middle-income countries) over the 24-month period, with high-income and low-income countries each accounting for 15 per cent and 4 per cent, respectively.

A breakdown of excess mortality

The estimates for a 24-month period (2020 and 2021) include a breakdown of excess mortality by age and sex. They confirm that the global death toll was higher for men than for women (57 per cent male, 43 per cent female) and higher among older adults. The absolute count of the excess deaths is affected by the population size. The number of excess deaths per 100,000 gives a more objective picture of the pandemic than reported COVID-19 mortality data.

"Measurement of excess mortality is an essential component to understand the impact of the pandemic. Shifts in mortality trends provide decision-makers information to guide policies to reduce mortality and effectively prevent future crises. Because of limited investments in data systems in many countries, the true extent of excess mortality often remains hidden," said Dr Samira Asma, Assistant Director-General for Data, Analytics and Delivery at WHO. "These new estimates use the best available data and have been produced using a robust methodology and a completely transparent approach." "Data is the foundation of our work every day to promote health, keep the world safe, and serve the vulnerable. We know where the data gaps are, and we must collectively intensify our support to countries, so that every country has the capability to track outbreaks in real-time, ensure delivery of essential health services, and safeguard population health," said Dr Ibrahimia Soce Fall, Assistant Director-General for Emergency Response.

Yangon real estate market sees high rentals, slack in transactions

THE market for rental property is in good condition and the transactions have been slack in Yangon, according to real estate agencies.

The tenants mostly chose the townships where have proper transport system, she continued.

Myawady-Mae Sot friendship bridge (1) to reopen soon

OFFICIALS from Myanmar and Thailand held a meeting on 5 May to reopen the Myawady-Mae Sot Friendship Bridge (1) on 15 May.

The bridge located at the two countries' border was closed due to COVID-19 on 23 March 2020. After two years of the closure, the two sides discussed reopening the bridge. The meeting discussed issues of reopening the bridge and controlling illegal border crossing, drugs and arms smuggling, and cross-border crimes.

“It's possible to reopen before 15 May. It's also announced in the Thai media. Still, border crossing near the bridge is restricted in Thailand, making it difficult for Myanmar migrant workers to return home, said Ko Min Min Tun, a migrant worker.

When the bridge was opened, about 2,000 people and hundreds of vehicles used the bridge. The Thai government plans to reopen 17 border crossings, including the Myawady-Mae Sot Friendship Bridge. It is also learned that plans are underway to run passenger bus lines from Mae Sot to Bangkok.

Travellers will need to make a border pass and passport to pass through the bridge and will be allowed in line with the COVID-19 health regulations. — TWA/GNLM

Health experts say anti-COVID-19 pill Paxlovid could reduce hospitalization risks

ANTI-COVID-19 pill Paxlovid could reduce risks for COVID-19 related hospitalization, and early treatment with Paxlovid and other available authorized therapeutics could make a difference for high-risk patients, according to health experts.

Paxlovid is now widely available at community pharmacies in the United States, said the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) on Wednesday.

“There is strong scientific evidence that it reduces the risk of hospitalization and death in patients with mild-to-moderate COVID-19 at high risk for progression to severe disease,” said John Farley, director of the Office of Infectious Diseases in the FDA’s Centre for Drug Evaluation and Research.

Paxlovid is also expected to be effective against the Omicron variant, Farley said. The FDA authorized Paxlovid in December 2021 for the treatment of mild-to-moderate COVID-19 in adults and pediatric patients 12 years of age and older weighing at least 40 kilogrammes, with positive results of direct SARS-CoV-2 viral testing who are also at high risk for progression to severe COVID-19, including hospitalization or death. Although the number of COVID-19 hospitalizations has decreased dramatically since early 2022, some high-risk patients are still getting sick enough to require hospital admission.

Early treatment with Paxlovid and other available authorized or approved therapeutics could make a difference, according to the FDA. Last week, US Vice-President Kamala Harris was prescribed Paxlovid after she tested positive for the virus. She tested negative on Monday this week for COVID-19 on a rapid antigen test.

Paxlovid contains nirmatrelvir and ritonavir. Paxlovid is now supplied in two different dose packs, one for standard dosing and one for moderate renal impairment dosing, according to the FDA. In patients with moderate renal impairment, the dosage of Paxlovid is 150 mg nirmatrelvir and 100 mg ritonavir twice daily for five days. Patients with mild renal impairment should receive the standard dose of 300 mg nirmatrelvir and 100 mg ritonavir with all three tablets taken together orally twice daily for five days, according to the FDA.—Xinhua

Two Omicron sub-variants driving S. Africa Covid spike: WHO

TWO new Omicron sub-variants are driving an increase in reported Covid cases in South Africa, the World Health Organization said Wednesday, stressing the importance of testing to monitor virus mutations and spread.

The heavily mutated and highly transmissible Omicron variant of Covid-19, which was first detected in southern Africa in November last year and rapidly spread globally, is now the dominant variant, accounting for almost all new cases.

Omicron has long been known to have several sub-variants, with BA.2 by far the most dominant.

But now the South African scientists who first identified Omicron are pointing to two other Omicron sub-variants, BA.4 and BA.5, “as the reason for a spike in cases” in the country, WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus told a press conference.

In its latest epidemiological report, the UN health agency said the sub-lineages “have acquired a few additional mutations that may impact their characteristics”.

Tedros said Wednesday that it was “too soon to know whether these new sub-variants can cause more severe disease than other Omicron sub-variants”.

However, he said, “early data suggest vaccination remains protective against severe disease and death.”

With a total number of laboratory-confirmed cases of nearly 3.8 million and more than 100,000 deaths, Covid-19 has hit South Africa harder than any other country on the continent.

The nation, where fewer than 45 per cent of adults have received two Covid vaccine jabs, saw a steep decline in the virus, allowing it in March to go two full days without reporting any Covid deaths -- for the first time in nearly two years.

In early April, the country lifted all Covid restrictions, but since then, cases have surged back up, jumping by close to 50 per cent in the past week, according to WHO data.

Essentially blind

“The best way to protect people remains vaccination, alongside tried and tested public health and social measures,” Tedros insisted Wednesday.

The WHO has officially recorded more than 6.2 million Covid deaths worldwide since the start of the pandemic, but the true toll is believed to be far higher.—AFP

Bharat Biotech seeks DCGI’s permission to conduct Covaxin booster trials in 2-18 age group

HYDERABAD-BASED pharmaceutical company Bharat Biotech has sought permission from the Drugs Controller General of India (DCGI) to conduct trials of Covaxin as COVID-19 vaccine booster dose in the 2-18 age group, sources said.

The company has applied for permission a week ago. It has already conducted trials in the age group of 2-18 for two doses of Covaxin.

Recently, Bharat Biotech has also received an Emergency Use Authorisation (EUA) approval for 6-12 years old children for two doses.

Bharat Biotech has also applied for the EUA for the 2-5 years old but Subject Expert Committee (SEC) has asked for more data.

Bharat Biotech is the first company in India who had applied for permission from DCGI to conduct trials of a booster dose in the 2-18 age group.

Currently, the Covaxin is under the national COVID vaccination programme for the above 15-18 age group for two doses and above 18 years old for a precaution dose.—ANI

China’s services activity plunges as zero-Covid drags

CHINA’S services sector activity slumped in April to the second lowest on record, independent data showed Thursday, in a further sign of an economic slowdown caused by the country’s Covid-linked restrictions.

The figures come as China’s leaders battle the highly infectious Omicron variant that has led to the locking down of major cities including Shanghai, the biggest in the country.

The purchasing managers’ index (PMI) released by Chinese media group Caixin came in at 36.2 in April, significantly lower than analysts expected and the worst since February 2020 at the beginning of the pandemic.

It is also the second straight month of decline, and below the 50-point mark separating growth from contraction.—AFP

Bulgaria industry on tenterhooks after Russia gas cut

Bulgaria, which was cut off by Russia last week, has received more than 90 per cent of its gas supplies from Russia for decades. PHOTO: AFP

THE halt of Russian gas supplies to Bulgaria last week has left companies big and small scrambling as they fear halts in deliveries and rising prices.

“We are already on the brink. We’ll have to raise our prices further,” said Valery Krastev, who owns a bread factory in the northern town of Montana.

“How will people pay for this bread?” he worried.

The government has insisted Bulgaria has “alternative choices” to Russian gas and won’t reduce supplies to consumers, calling Moscow’s move to halt deliveries “blackmail”.

While natural gas supplies had escaped punishing European sanctions on Russia over its invasion of Ukraine, Moscow sought to sow division among European nations by exploiting their dependence on its gas.

Russia demanded that Gazprom customers have to pay in rubles rather than US dollars or euros, which would be a violation of Western sanctions.

The Russian energy giant cut deliveries to Bulgaria and Poland on 27 April.

Since then, Bulgaria’s neighbours have stepped in, shoring up deliveries to the country, which has received more than 90 per cent of its gas from Russia for decades.

Global air cargo demand drops over Russia-Ukraine war, Omicron concerns

A decline in global air cargo markets was witnessed in the month of March, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) data showed amid COVID variant Omicron’s influence in Asia and the Russia-Ukraine war that is leading to a challenging operational background.

“The war in Ukraine led to a fall in cargo capacity used to serve Europe as several airlines based in Russia and Ukraine were key cargo players. Sanctions against Russia led to disruptions in manufacturing. And rising oil prices are having a negative economic impact, including raising costs for shipping,” IATA said.

The effects of Omicron in Asia, the Russia-Ukraine war and a challenging operating backdrop contributed to the decline. Global demand, measured in cargo tonne-kilometres (CTKs), fell 5.2 per cent compared to March 2021 (-5.4 per cent for international operations).

“Global demand, measured in cargo tonne-kilometres (CTKs), fell 5.2 per cent compared to March 2021 (-5.4 per cent for international operations). Capacity was 1.2 per cent above March 2021 (+2.6 per cent for international operations). While this is in positive territory, it is a significant decline from the 11.2 per cent year-on-year increase in February. Asia and Europe experienced the largest falls in capacity,” IATA data read.— ANI

Heatwave-hit India says no plans to curb wheat exports

INDIA has no plans to curb wheat exports — needed to help plug the gap left by the Ukraine war — despite the current heatwave hitting output, the government said.

The world’s number two wheat producer has major buffer stocks and has said it is ready to increase exports to countries hit by falling supplies from Ukraine and Russia.

But its hottest March on record and a heatwave in recent days have sparked speculation that India might instead prioritise domestic supplies in the country of 1.4 billion people.

Local media quoted Sudhan-shu Pandey, India’s food secretary, as saying on Wednesday that wheat production was expected to fall at least five per cent this year from 110 million tonnes in 2021.

But he added: “I don’t see any controls on exports.”—AFP

Biden heads to Ohio to tout industrial renewal plan

US President Joe Biden will travel to political battleground state Ohio on Friday to announce the launch of a new industrial renewal plan that his administration hopes will revive the country’s manufacturing sector.

The initiative, dubbed “AM Forward” (Additive Manufacturing Forward), is aimed at increasing the use of 3D printing and other next-generation production technologies among US companies, a White House statement said.

Several top US firms, including GE Aviation, Honeywell, Lockheed Martin, Raytheon and Siemens Energy, have committed to a voluntary pact to support US-based suppliers in adopting new parts manufacturing technologies, the statement said.

Small and medium enterprises that choose to take up the initiative will be able to avail the support of federal programmes to boost their competitiveness in the sector, the administration promised. Ukraine’s farmers risk death in bomb-strewn fields

It’s spring planting season in Ukraine, but this year farmers require more than fuel and fertiliser -- they also need flak jackets and deminers to destroy the bombs that have already killed or maimed others in their fields.

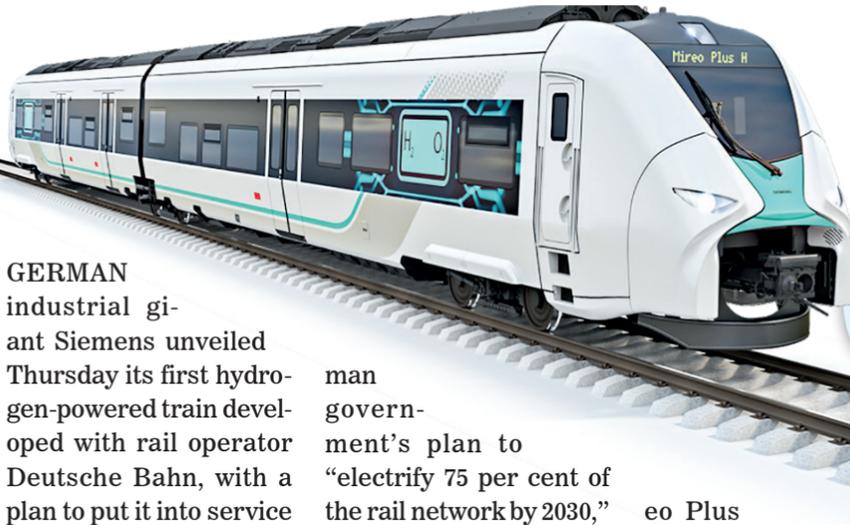

One of the unexploded rockets lay on an island of undisturbed black soil in Igor Tsiapa’s field in the nation’s southwest and posed a deadly threat to getting his corn crop planted on land that was otherwise ploughed and waiting.

“We first spotted the projectile a week and a half ago but just didn’t touch this part of the field and continued on getting ready for planting,” he told AFP on Thursday, a few metres from the deminers prepping the device for destruction.

“Everything has to be done on schedule if you want to have a more or less proper harvest... We had to keep working,” the nearly 60-year-old added in the area of the village of Grygorivka.

Siemens unveils hydrogen-powered train

GERMAN industrial giant Siemens unveiled Thursday its first hydrogen-powered train developed with rail operator Deutsche Bahn, with a plan to put it into service regionally in 2024.

The locomotive which runs on electricity produced by a hydrogen fuel cell “should replace diesel powered trains in regional traffic and reduce carbon emissions on rails to zero,” Deutsche Bahn said in a statement.

Hydrogen-powered trains is part of the German government’s plan to “electrify 75 per cent of the rail network by 2030,” said Michael Theurer, state secretary at the transport ministry.

Fuel cells generate clean electricity from reactions using hydrogen and oxygen as the only emission is water.

While most hydrogen currently comes from the gas industry, the Siemens train model called Mireo Plus H will use “green hydrogen” from sustainable energy.

“Each train delivered will save up to 45,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide for a lifetime of 30 years,” said Michael Peter, who heads Siemens Mobility.

If all goes to plan, Mireo Plus H will begin its trial in southwestern Germany in 2023, before running commercially in 2024, shuttling commuters between Tuebingen, Horb and Pforzheim.

With the hydrogen model, Siemens is trying to catch up with French competitor Al-stom, which already has such trains on the market.

Two German states have placed orders with Alstom for 41 trains and trials have already been carried out in several countries including Austria, Poland and France.—AFP

JAL forecasts return to profit in FY 2022 on travel recovery hopes

JAPAN Airlines Co. said Friday it sees a return to the black in the business year ending next March on expectations that travel demand will recover as the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic have begun to ease.

JAL reported a net profit forecast of 45 billion yen ($345 million) in the current fiscal year, noting that its expectations outweigh uncertainties stemming from the Ukraine crisis and elevated fuel prices.

Fiscal 2022 sales are projected to more than double from a year earlier to 1.39 trillion yen.

In fiscal 2021 through 31 March, JAL posted a net loss for the second consecutive year of 177.55 billion yen, while its sales rose 41.9 per cent to 682.71 billion yen.

The net loss narrowed from 286.69 billion yen a year earlier, thanks to cost cuts and its strong cargo business. However, a surge in the Omicron variant across the country and restrictions related to the pandemic left the airline in the red.

JAL expects demand for domestic flights to recover to 90 per cent of pre-COVID levels through the year. In comparison, international travel is seen staying at around 45 per cent due to remaining border controls.—Kyodo

BMW shrugs off supply chain woes to lift profits in first quarter

GERMAN automaker BMW said Thursday that strong demand for its premium brands enabled it to lift profits in the first quarter even though supply chain bottlenecks and pandemic lockdowns weighed on sales.

BMW said in a statement that its bottom-line net profit soared by 260 percent to 10.2 billion euros ($10.8 billion) in the period from January to March.

The rise was attributable to the consolidation of BMW’s Chinese joint venture, BMW Brilliance effect, underlying earnings — as measured by operating profit — were also higher, rising by 12.1 per cent to 3.4 billion euros in the January-March period.

“The BMW group further strengthened its competitive position as well as its profitability in the first quarter of 2022, thanks to sustained demand for its premium vehicles,” the statement said.

Croatia iconic biscuit name change leaves bitter taste

HOUSEHOLD chores should be divided equally: that’s what a Croatian company said it was promoting by adding job titles to the name of a popular biscuit. Instead, it sparked outrage among women.

Pilots say new Mexico City airport causing safety issues

THE opening of a second international airport for Mexico City has resulted in safety incidents including warnings that aircraft were in danger of flying into the ground, a pilot association said.

Air traffic controllers appear to have received little training and support on how to operate the new configuration, the International Federation of Air Line Pilots' Associations (IFALPA) said in a safety bulletin dated 4 May.

The organization said it had "been made aware of several incidents involving aircraft" at Mexico City International Airport, since Felipe Angeles International Airport opened north of the capital on 21 March.

They included planes arriving "with low fuel states due to unplanned holding, diversions for excessive delays, and significant GPWS (ground proximity warning system) alerts," it said.

"One crew almost had a controlled flight into terrain," it added.

The International Air Transport Association defines such an incident as "an in-flight collision with terrain, water, or obstacle without indication of loss of control."

IFALPA urged crews to consider carrying additional fuel in case they have to wait for permission to land or divert to another airport, and to exercise heightened terrain situational awareness.

Experts have previously highlighted the challenges of operating two airports in a city surrounded by mountains and at an altitude of more than 2,200 metres (around 7,300 feet) above sea level.

So far airlines are operating only a small number of daily flights from Felipe Angeles International Airport, a flagship project of President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador built at a military air base north of the capital.

Colombia military bristles at rise of leftist presidential hopeful

HISTORICALLY aligned to a succession of rightwing governments, Colombia's top military echelon has broken a long-standing rule of political neutrality to lash out against a perceived leftist threat.

With former guerrilla fighter Gustavo Petro standing a good chance of becoming Colombia's next president, the army chief and defence minister have taken to social media to brand him a "liar" and corrupt.

Petro, a former enemy of the state security apparatus as a guerrilla in the 1970s and 80s, is leading in opinion polls ahead of the 29 May first round of presidential elections.

If he wins, he will become

Colombia's first leftist leader and the first former guerrilla to oversee the armed forces of a country still battling the violent aftermath of six decades of civil conflict.

Petro's rise has so riled up the military establishment that they have risked contravening the law to slam him publicly.

A constitutional provision bars those in uniform from voting or expressing political opinions.

"There are those within the military who perceive that the war (against guerrilla forces) was won on the battlefield but is being lost politically," Carlos Alfonso Velasquez, a military analyst and ex-colonel told AFP.—AFP

Palestinians lose two-decade court battle over land

ISRAELI civil rights groups on Thursday denounced a High Court decision that approved the eviction of roughly 1,000 Palestinian villagers to make way for a military training zone.

Residents of eight villages had been in court for around 20 years fighting Israeli government efforts to evict them.

The case of Masafer Yatta — or Firing Zone 918 — an agriculture area near Hebron in the occupied West Bank, has been one of Israel's longest running legal battles.

In the early 1980s the army declared the 3,000-hectare (30 square kilometre) territory a restricted military area and claimed it was uninhabited.

li soldiers set foot in the West Bank, which the Jewish state has occupied since 1967.

It captured the territory from Jordan in the Six-Day War and the West bank is now home to more than 475,000 settlers — Jewish Israelis living in communities widely regarded as illegal under international law.

In its decision late on Wednesday the High Court said the villagers "failed to prove" their claim to permanent residence before its declaration as a training zone.—AFP

Arrivals from Britain — Spain's largest market — stood at 1.8 million, nearly 30 times the figure in 2021. PHOTO: AFP

British tourists boost Spain's holiday arrivals

THE number of tourists coming to Spain rose over eightfold during the first quarter compared to last year, boosted by returning British holidaymakers, the national statistics agency INE said Thursday.

Tourist arrivals reached 9.7 million between January and March, up from 1.2 million a year back, it said.

Arrivals from Britain — Spain's largest market — stood at 1.8 million, nearly 30 times the figure in 2021.

"Month after month, tourism continues its consolidation," Tourism Minister Maria Reyes Maroto said in a statement, adding she was "optimistic" for the rest of the year.

While the number of tourists flocking to Spain in March hit 4 million, up from 491,000 in the same month last year, the figure was still 71 per cent of the number recorded in March 2019 before the Covid-19 pandemic.

The world's second most visited country before the pandemic with 83.5 million visitors in 2019, Spain welcomed just 19 million tourists in 2020.—AFP

EU hands police agency new powers over personal data

THE European Parliament on Wednesday voted to hand the EU's police agency new powers to gather and use data, provoking an angry response from privacy activists.

The chamber overwhelmingly approved a proposal that allows Europol to work more closely with non-EU governments and share personal information with private companies.

The European Union said the new regime was needed to help coordinate the fight against terrorism, child sex abuse and other serious crimes.

But activists warned that oversight was too weak and the reforms would turn the police agency into a "data black hole".

"Europol will be allowed to collect and share data left, right, and centre without much restriction or control," said Chloe Berthelemy of the NGO European Digital Rights.

The group, along with a coalition of other NGOs, said the reforms created serious risks of violations of the right to a fair trial, privacy and data protection, non-discrimination and freedom of expression.

needed because terrorists often used private companies to recruit, and insisted the reforms would respect fundamental rights. A European Parliament statement stressed that people would be able "to consult personal data related to them" and oversight would come from a new post of Fundamental Rights Officer and the European Data Protection Supervisor.

The regulation was "a substantial leap forward in the capabilities of the agency", said rapporteur Javier Zarzalejos following the vote, which was carried with 480 MEPs in favour and 143 against.— AFP

ANY vehicle of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) that arrives in Ukraine with weapons or material for the needs of the Ukrainian armed forces is considered by Russia as "a legitimate target for destruction," Russian Defence Minister Sergei Shoigu said Wednesday, reported Xinhua.

Shoigu made the remarks at a meeting with Russia's top defence officials, noting the United States and its NATO allies are continuing to supply weapons to Ukraine.

Russian troops together with the forces of Lugansk and Donetsk are controlling more areas of Donbass, and they will continue to fulfill their tasks, according to the minister.—Xinhua

Putin apologized for Russia Hitler claims: Israel PM's office

RUSSIAN President Vladimir Putin has apologized for remarks made by his Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov, who claimed Adolf Hitler may have had "Jewish blood", Israel said on Thursday.

Lavrov's comments sparked outrage in Israel, which has sought to maintain ties with Russia following the invasion of Ukraine.

"The Prime Minister accepted President Putin's apology for Lavrov's remarks and thanked him for clarifying his attitude towards the Jewish people and the memory of the Holocaust," Bennett's office said in a statement.

UN sends new Mariupol convoy to rescue civilians from 'bleak hell'

A new UN convoy was expected in Mariupol Friday to evacuate civilians from the "bleak hell" of a besieged steel plant that has become the last pocket of resistance against invading Russian forces in the southern port city. The Russian military had announced a three-day ceasefire at the site starting Thursday but a Ukrainian commander said there was still heavy fighting at the sprawling Azovstal complex, where hundreds of soldiers and civilians have been holed up for weeks under heavy bombardment.

Asian Games 2022 in China postponed: organizers

THE Asian Games due to take place in Hangzhou in September have been postponed indefinitely, organizers said Friday, as China battles a resurgence of Covid cases. No reason was given for the delay, but China is racing to extinguish its largest outbreak of Covid-19 since the early days of the pandemic.

“The Olympic Council of Asia has announced that the 19th Asian Games, originally scheduled to be held in Hangzhou, China from September 10 to 25, 2022, will be postponed,” said a statement on the official Games website, first posted on Chinese state media.

The new dates for the sporting contest “will be announced at a later date”, the statement added. The host city of Hangzhou lies near the country’s biggest city, Shanghai, which has endured a weeks-long lockdown as part of the ruling Communist Party’s zero-tolerance approach to the virus. Organizers said last month that Hangzhou, a city of 12 million in eastern China, had finished constructing some 56 competition venues for the Asian Games and Asian Para Games.

At the time, they indicated that they planned to hold the events under a virus control plan that “learns from the successful experience” of the Beijing Winter Olympics, which were held in February in a Covid-secure bubble.— AFP

MIKEL Arteta said he wants to take Arsenal to the “next level” after signing a new contract that will keep him at the Premier League club until 2025. The 40-year-old, who took over at the Emirates in December 2019 following the dismissal of Unai Emery, is close to leading the Gunners back into the Champions League after a five-year absence.

Arsenal are fourth in the Premier League table, two points clear of north London rivals Tottenham with just four games to go. The Spaniard said Friday he was “really happy” to have signed his new deal at the club that he captained when he was a player. “We want to take the club to the next level and to compete really with the top teams,” he said.

“In order to do that, we have to be playing in the Champions League. We have to be able to evolve the team, improve our players, improve all departments, generate even more connection with our fans, improve the atmosphere at the Emirates, be able to recruit top, top talent and the best people for this club to drive this project to that level.”—AFP
