State Counsellor holds meeting with chairpersons of self-administered division/zones, heads of state/region administrative bodies

State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi held a meeting with the chairpersons from leading bodies of the Self-Administered Division/Zones and heads of administrative bodies from Nay Pyi Taw Council Area, regions and states yesterday.

The meeting at the Thingaha Hotel in Nay Pyi Taw was also attended by Union Ministers U Kyaw Tint Swe and U Min Thu, Deputy Ministers U Khin Maung Tin, U Tin Myint and U Hla Maw Oo.

At the meeting the State Counsellor said that Myanmar was a country which was moving towards the goal of a Democratic Federal Union; to establish a genuine democratic union, basically, it was necessary to achieve unity based on diversity; the fires of internal conflicts have existed in Myanmar ever since she gained independence because she has not been able to establish unity based on diversity.

She said when she used the term diversity, she meant not only racial but also ideological diversity; that was why she hoped that everyone understood how important it was to achieve unity based on diversity; to get this kind of understanding it was necessary to study the situation of the world; the main thing that she wanted to say was the fact that it was possible for political systems to exist based on different characteristics among the people; it was necessary to balance these two things; it was natural for everyone to want to preserve their different characteristics.

In her opinion, she thought that the reason for the existence of diversity due to its preservation was the result of the basic belief that there was no security for these people; if a certain attitude develops which feels that there was no security for that individual if this person was different from others, this person would consider others who were different as enemies; this person would see others as people who would endanger his security; that was why it was necessary to strive to reach a stage when we could eliminate this kind of outlook and give security to the basic laws of the country and its basic values; in striving for this, the Union Government and various levels of the governmental departments also need to make efforts; in the same way every individual need to make an effort.

Today, she wanted all the self-administered division / zones to think how they could assist in the establishment of the Democratic Federal Union; people in every area and every group want to preserve their unique characteristics; it would be possible to say we are firmly on the path towards a Democratic Federal Union if we were able to nurture a spirit which believes such preservation has a better chance of success under the umbrella of a Union.

U Kay Sai from Naga Self-Administered Zone.

U Ar Kar Lin from Danu Self-Administered Zone.

U Khun San Lwin from Pa'O Self-Administered Zone.

The self-administered division / zones are not the same as the states; in the states there were all kinds of ethnic races; we could say that this was a challenge; we could also say this was a kind of strength; we need to turn diversity into strength; for example in a group, in solving a problem, this group would be able to solve many different types of problems if there were people with different skills.

That was why Self-administered zones should try to seek ways to turn diversity into strength with a firm determination; a country such as ours with so many diverse races was rare; we need to turn diversity into strength; not only to turn diversity into strength, we need to strive towards turning it into unity; we need to strive so that if one person lacks in strength, the other person would fill in

... people in every area and every group want to preserve their unique characteristics; it would be possible to say we are firmly on the path towards a Democratic Federal Union if we were able to nurture a spirit which believes such preservation has a better chance of success under the umbrella of a Union.

the needed strength; we need to work for this kind of belief to develop.

The chairmen of leading bodies of self-administered division / zones need to strive for developing their division and zones in the best possible way; she believed that all of them understood how big and difficult the challenges they were facing were; the reason for this meeting was to overcome these challenges together; she said the ultimate goal was to establish a Democratic Federal Union and in order to do this to solve and eliminate matters which can obstruct and cause problems for establishing a federal union.

The two main challenges

we are facing are in terms of health it was the COVID-19 matter and in terms of politics it was the general elections to be conducted in the near future; the participation of all the people was number one priority for us to be able to overcome these two matters; we have repeatedly said "People are the key"; all of you who are sitting in this room are included in "the people"; we are all citizens; please do not forget that each individual person is crucial; as persons holding state responsibilities in key positions as citizens, you have responsibilities; she believed that they have heavier responsibilities than others; that was why she wanted to urge everyone to overcome the two challenges currently being faced effectively and successfully; these challenges could be overcome; she said.

To be successful in doing something, first of all you need self-confidence; you need to believe that you have the requisite skills to be able to solve, face and solve a problem; it is also necessary to believe that there is not only individual skill but also a collective of skills; if there was a belief that you have collective strength and that there were people willing to provide support and assistance, you can assume that your path to success is assured.

She wanted to say something about COVID-19; in our whole country government personnel have to work very hard and suffer great hardships; we can be proud of the fact that these efforts have resulted in meeting the challenge of this disease not only at the country level but also at the global level; she was grateful for all those who have participated in these efforts; the COVID-19 thing is not yet over; the duty to solve this problem is not only for our country; the main thing is that it is related to vaccines and doing research; we cannot say that we have overcome this problem until a vaccine has been developed; we should not feel disheartened for the fact that our country is not capable of producing a vaccine; everyone is working in cooperation to develop a vaccine for COVID-19; the fact that each and everyone is working hard is not only for our country but also for the whole world. That is why we need to keep our discipline and follow the rules and regulations until a vaccine has been developed.

The relevant departments and government personnel need to ensure that our people do not let down their guard and become careless; the general elections will be conducted on 8 November; for the general elections to be successful, the basic thing that is needed is for it to be free and fair; to have the freedom to vote, we need to ensure that all eligible citizen who have the right to vote are able to vote; in carrying this out there must be fairness.

The right to vote is the biggest right for a citizen, not only is it a very valuable right, but it is also a very important duty; it is the duty of the State to ensure that citizens are able to perform their duties and to exercise the right to vote; therefore it is the first duty of all government personnel to ensure that all eligible citizens who have the right to vote are able to vote and not to leave behind any eligible voter; the biggest challenge we are facing at this time is this matter; we need to create the right conditions so that all these citizens are able to vote in freedom and security.

She added that when she said security, what she meant to say mainly was health security;

U Win Kyaw (a) U Aik Mein from Pa Laung Self-Administered Zone.

U Kyauk Tal Chan from Kokang Self-Administered Zone.

U Yan Kyaw from Wa Self-Administered Division.

this was the responsibility of the State and also the responsibility of governmental personnel; the states/regions were performing their duties; now the self-administered division / zones need to perform their duties; the Self-administered division / zones need to show that they can really perform their duties effectively; in this way we can show that we have laid down respect and mutual trust. In reality, it is not easy to build mutual respect and mutual trust; it is not easy to trust someone; there are persons one can trust but one must also strive to become a trustworthy person.

Governmental personnel who are interconnected with the people's development are also important; it is important for the people to trust govern-take immediate action on urgent matters and with respect to matters that would need more time, continuous efforts would be made to assist and provide support for these matters.

After the speech of State Counsellor, the Chairperson of Naga Self-Administered Zone, U Kay Sai, discussed the requirement of infrastructural development in their area, Chairperson U Ar Kar from Danu Self-Administered Zone about negotiation with leading bodies of self-administered division/zones before appointing civil service staff of the government ministries, the role of their administration in drawing laws and bylaws, the formation of planning and implementation committees and attending the events for peace-making processes.

U Khun San Lwin from Pa'O Self-Administered Zone discussed control and elimination of narcotic drugs, developing pilot projects, low-interest loan programmes for young entrepreneurs, the establishment of training schools for local ethnic people and land plot for construction of a court.

U Win Kyaw (a) U Aik Mein from Pa Laung Self-Administered Zone discussed upgrade of departmental offices, budget allocation for a combined office, legal actions against the illegal import of tea leaves; U Kyauk Tal Chan from Kokang Self-Administered Zone talked on the situation of their areas, organization and population, upgrade of the hospital, national registration for Kokang people and development of Chinshwehaw economic zone; U Yan Kyaw from Wa Self-Administered Division presented peace and local development issues.

In response to the discussions, the State Counsellor said that: the government will work for the development of self-administered areas; the rule of law is taken into serious consideration as it is necessary for the development and requires financial, human resources and material supports; approval for citizenship is required to meet the existing law; schools need to educate students to avoid narcotic drugs; peace is fundamental for national development; fair trade must be considered in the development of Chinshwehaw economic zone and it will be discussed with China; diversity must turn into a strength; the government will emphasize border area development.

She also made a wide range of discussions on the government's plans for these areas.

In her concluding remark, the State Counsellor said that it is expected that all the nationals have a common hope for the country although people have different backgrounds of political parties and areas; serving for the nation is a noble task for all civil service staff; the duty must be performed with the highest capacity in a proper way.

She added that the persons who were elected by the public must not betray the trust of people; all the common people expect peace and development and it is an undeniable truth; diverse interest must be negotiated for peace and development; peace should be developed by both brains and hearts; military powers should not be used in building peace; development must be encouraged through rule of law and justice; rule of law, national reconciliation and non-terrorism play crucial role for Myanmar and the establishment of a Democratic Federal Union, and the discussions at the meeting could support it.

The State Counsellor concluded her speech, saying that hidden problems cannot be solved and that they must be identified first; the government welcome the report on problems to be able to address them; it has been firmly believed that the collective strength could ensure a harmonious development of the country, and all the stakeholders are to share this determination.—MNA

Our country works with collective strength; that was why we always make it a point to mention "national reconciliation" in presenting our government policy; "national reconciliation" - means everyone working together to harmoniously merge different opinions and values.

the basic foundation of a democratic union; we can present the best image for our country by showing that our citizens can exercise their rights and are able to perform their duty; she wanted the responsible persons of the self-administered division / zones to try and make sure that the citizens have the right to vote and that the people perform their duties. Our country works with collective strength; that was why we always make it a point to mention "national reconciliation" in presenting our government policy; "national reconciliation" - means everyone working together to harmoniously merge different opinions and values.

All of us should realize how difficult it is to build unity based on this present matter; we would be able to build a genuine Democratic Federal Union only if we have mutual understanding, open-mindedness and mutual mental personnel; responsible officials should listen to the voices of the people; by listening to the voices of the local people, a better understanding could be achieved among each other; trust has to be build based on understanding.

For the self-administered division / zones, there can be requirements in the administrative sector. The Union Government is working for the whole country to the best of its ability to ensure harmony and equality; it can be assured that the Union Government would work to the best of its ability in accordance with the need of each region and area; as the responsible official of each region knows what is needed, the Union Government would make a suitable decision as to how and what kind of assistance need to be provided; therefore, based on the submissions made by the respective responsible officials, she would

It is very important to live with vigilance

It has been said that the way COVID-19 disease spread was different from country to country. It changed from one place to the other. In Myanmar, it has been said that most of the infection cases did not show any symptoms. It was very dangerous. If the symptoms were visible the disease could be avoided. If the COVID-19 disease did not show visible symptoms, it could not be avoided. That was why it was very important to live with vigilance.

Supporting, promoting public health through physical activity amidst COVID-19 is a must

WHEN we are preparing to safely transition towards a "new normal" in which social and economic life can function amidst low, we must mobilize a whole-of-society approach to not only supporting one another to stay safe but also to creating activity for healthy.

No doubt. Regular physical activity remains an important strategy for staying healthy and is associated with lower levels of anxiety and perceived stress (which many of us are feeling in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic).

When it comes to promoting physical exercise as a mass campaign, it is required to take measures consistent with the new normal during and following the COVID-19 crisis.

The Ministry of Health and Sports adopted strategies for ensuring the good health and fitness of the people, under a programme entitled "Exercise is Medicine".

we should conduct sports and physical exercise campaigns by occasionally designating suitable days throughout the year, in an effort to raise the public's awareness that "Exercise is Medicine."

The ministry is carrying out tasks which can turn the people's participation in weekly physical exercise activities in December, designated the People's Sports Month, into a habit and culture encompassing "Exercise is Medicine."

Mass walking and physical exercise activities have been held every Saturday in December nationwide. This does not mean we should exercise every Saturday in the winter, but it alerted all people not to ignore physical exercise in their daily lives.

In this regard, we should conduct sports and physical exercise campaigns by occasionally designating suitable days throughout the year, in an effort to raise the public's awareness that "Exercise is Medicine."

It is worth noting that the very best thing you can do to boost your immune system and prepare your body to fight disease is exercising.

If exercise was a pill it would be regarded as a wonder drug, the best medicine, so powerful are its known effects to improve everything from general wellbeing to musculoskeletal disease to cardiovascular problems to diabetes, multiple sclerosis, mental health, anxiety and depression.

With a new policy giving priority to raising awareness about health, prevention and treatment of non-communicable diseases, school health, safety of patients, and health research, our country is evolving into a people-based system, because people are the most effective resource in our system to benefit the country and the people.

Myanmar aspires to achieve, as part of its vision 2030, a healthier and productive population. However, for the aspiration to be fulfilled, there is much work that needs to be done, both in terms of Health System Strengthening (HSS) and in changing peoples' behaviors, such as regularly exercising, including walking.

INTERNATIONAL YOUTH DAY 12 AUGUST 2020

Youth leading the way in COVID-19 solutions

By UNFPA Executive Director Dr Natalia Kanem

As the world seeks to build back better, we must ensure that young people are prioritized in order to have access to the education, tools, and services necessary for them to reach their full potential.

AS we mark International Youth Day in the midst of a global pandemic, we witness how young people are taking action to solve problems in their communities.

Young people have been frontline responders to the COVID-19 pandemic, mobilizing across the world. They are health workers, activists, innovators, and social and community workers.

To reach and engage young people during this pandemic, we must share information, clarify misinformation, and we must equip them to take action to contain the spread of the virus. We must validate the leadership of young people and uphold their human rights.

UNFPA, the United Nations sexual and reproductive health agency, listens to the voices of young people and supports their meaningful participation in decisions that affect them.

Last week, UNFPA spearheaded a global #YouthAgainstCOVID19 conversation. Young people everywhere are encouraged to upload videos that highlight their actions to combat the pandemic and to share lessons about how they are charting new paths forward for their communities.

Among the devastating effects of the pandemic, the loss of opportunities for employment, education and access to essential services, including sexual and reproductive health services, means that many young people are facing infringement of their rights and choices. Young women and girls are particularly vulnerable.

As the world seeks to build back better, we must ensure that young people are prioritized in order to have access to the education, tools, and services necessary for them to reach their full potential.

Today, let's join hands across generations. Let's come together and rise to the challenges before us, working with youth to build a more inclusive, sustainable future for all.

NEVER TOO LATE FOR ACTION TO SUPPRESS THE COVID-19 CRISIS

WHO sees hope despite looming 750,000 virus death toll

WHO health emergencies programme director Michael Ryan said that finding a vaccine would not automatically spell the end for COVID-19.

THE World Health Organization insisted Monday there was still hope of conquering the coronavirus pandemic despite the suffering behind the looming landmarks of 750,000 deaths and 20 million cases.

With both figures expected to be reached within days, the WHO stressed it was never too late to take action to suppress the COVID-19 crisis that has gripped the planet.

Registered cases

"This week we'll reach 20 million registered cases of COVID-19 and 750,000 deaths," WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus told a virtual press conference.

"Behind these statistics is a great deal of pain and suffering. Every life lost matters. I know many of you are grieving and that this is a difficult moment for the world.

"But I want to be clear: there are green shoots of hope and... it's never too late to turn the outbreak around."

Tedros gave examples of countries that had successfully clamped down on the spread of COVID-19, citing New Zealand and Rwanda, and praised nations that had suffered major national outbreaks and were now responding quickly to local spikes.

"My message is crystal clear: suppress, suppress, suppress the virus," he said.

"If we suppress the virus effectively, we can safely open up societies."

The novel coronavirus has killed at least 731,500 people and infected nearly 19.9 million worldwide since the outbreak emerged in China last December, according to a tally from official sources compiled by AFP at 1100 GMT on Monday.

Vaccine rush

The race to produce a safe and effective vaccine is well under way at unprecedented speed.

A total of 165 candidate vaccines are being worked on around the world, according to a WHO overview.

Of those, 139 are still in pre-clinical evaluation, while the other 26 are in the various phases of being tested on humans, of which six are the furthest ahead, having reached Phase 3 of clinical evaluation.

However, WHO health emergencies programme director Michael Ryan said that finding a vaccine would not automatically spell the end for COVID-19.

Russia is pushing ahead with several vaccine prototypes and one prepared at the Gamaleya institute in Moscow has reached advanced stages of development. (FILE/AFP)

Hteekhee border trade falls by $494 mln in ten months

BILATERAL trade between Thailand and Myanmar through the Hteekhee border in the past ten months reflected a decrease of $494 million as against a year-ago period.

Between 1 October and 31 July in the 2019-2020 financial year, the figures sharply fell to US$1.65 billion from $2.145 billion registered in the year-ago period, according to the data from the Commerce Ministry.

During the past ten months of the current budget year, exports through the Hteekhee border stood at $1.61 billion, while imports fell short of $39.89 million.

Exports of natural gas from Taninthayi Region have contributed to the enormous increase in trade through the Hteekhee border since the previous financial year, said an official from the ministry.

Earlier, the Myawady border sees the largest trade among the Myanmar-Thailand checkpoints.

The rise in exports through the Hteekhee border had boosted the value of the Myanmar-Thailand border trade in the 2018-2019FY. In the current financial year, trade values via Hteekhee also surpassed those registered at Myawady gate.

However, Myanmar's exports of natural gas to Thailand over the past eight months of the current financial year 2019-2020 showed a decrease of about $400 million compared with the corresponding period of 2018-

2019FY, according to the Commerce Ministry

Of the seven borders between Myanmar and Thailand, Myeik, Mawtaung and Hteekhee have witnessed a decrease in trade in the current financial year, while the remaining borders (Tachilek, Myawady, Kawthoung and Maese) have reported an increase.

Myanmar primarily exports natural gas, fishery products, coal, tin concentrate (SN 71.58 per cent), coconut (fresh and dry), beans, corns and bamboo shoots to Thailand. This year, corn exports to Thailand rose significantly compared with the previous years, yet natural gas export drastically plunged. It imports capital goods such as machinery, raw industrial goods such as cement and fertilizers, and consumer goods such as cosmetics and food products from the neighbouring country.

Connected, competent and critical: Youth in the digital age

(An exclusive International Youth Day 2020)

By Hans Martin Høegh
Henrichsen

Today's youth have more opportunities than any generation before but are also facing some of humankind's biggest challenges. It is in all of our interest that they succeed.

ON International Youth Day 12 August, we celebrate young people, youth-led organizations and all those who work to empower and uplift young people everywhere. The theme of International Youth Day 2020 is "Youth Engagement for Global Action". It is our youth who are inheriting massive challenges like climate change, increasing polarization and widening inequality. Their active engagement is crucial to help address all of them. More than at any point in history, youth need to be connected, competent and retain a healthy sense of critical thinking.

The rise of the digital natives

Understanding young people's relationship to technology can seem overwhelming. It may look like youths' lives revolve around their phones – living through the lens of social media, using apps for everything and anything, and hardly interacting with anyone IRL ("in real life"). Most young people today are digital natives who have known no other reality than constant connectivity.

More similar than different

According to Statista, more than 4.5 billion people worldwide were active internet users as of April 2020. In Myanmar, there were 22 million internet users in January 2020. That means 41% of the population in Myanmar are online. Young people adapt early and jump on international trends faster than ever – just observe how new 'born global' mobile apps are taken up almost simultaneously whether you're in Boston, Bangkok or Bago. The youth segment transcends borders and care about global issues, and that is why someone like Greta Thunberg can become a world celebrity with her 'school strike for climate'.

The democratization of entrepreneurship

Youth are essential to tackle global, social challenges like the UN Sustainable Development Goals. That's also why Telenor for several years ran a global platform called Telenor Youth Forum with young leaders from all its markets in the Nordics and Asia. The programme, run in collaboration with the Nobel Peace Centre, saw massive interest and engagement from candidates across Telenor's footprint and gave rise to new ventures that continue to this day. Most importantly, it demonstrated that this global crowd of youth could productively come together in short time, due to them already being connected. Youth also use connectivity to create inventions that are purely commercial, much earlier than what we've seen before: Robert Nay, who invented the Bubble Ball game that was downloaded more than 2 million times within 2 weeks, was only 14 when it launched.

Connecting responsibly

Constant connectivity is not without challenges. Being connected does not mean you know how to use it productively and properly. And connectivity is not equally accessible for all. While one benefits from technology, another might be threatened by it. According to recent statistics, about 37% of young people between the ages of 12 and 17 have been bullied online. It is on us adults and professionals like telecom operators to make sure that youths are getting the best and safest experience from technology.

Be kind!

To support youth in becoming better digital citizens, and to properly and responsibly use the internet, Telenor Myanmar launched the "Be Kind Online!" campaign joining hands with Plan International in June. The campaign addresses issues of cyberbullying, hate speech, cyber grooming, sexting, fake news, and more through targeted digital resilience trainings. Aiming to help stop cyberbullying and increase digital resilience, the campaign concludes on August 12, the International Youth Day.

Lifelong learning

Transformative technologies like Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Virtual Reality (VR) are making it increasingly important for youth to be familiar with advanced concepts at an early stage. Being a digital native is not sufficient; you need to understand why and how these technologies impact you and your community. The continued learning that working adults need to adapt to, starts already now for young people. Lifelong learning is required as digitalization increases and infuses all parts of our lives, like transportation, manufacturing, education, healthcare and more.

Reducing inequalities

It is up to all of us – governments, organizations, schools and telecoms operators – to make our youth technology ready. And it is up to the youth themselves to seek those skills and that knowledge. This can start with something as simple as taking part in simple digital literacy trainings and teaching youth to take responsibility for their online behavior. Telenor Myanmar is committed to creating a safer digital space for Myanmar's youth, promoting positive online behaviors, and providing youth with the resources to address and cope with negative online experiences. Our goal is to make sure no one is left behind.

Striking the right balance

Saying connected can seem to be all about fun and games. As all good things, both youth and adults need it in moderation. As adults we need to help promote balance: physical exercise, offline learning, and other activities, to make sure they leave enough time in their week for face-to-face interaction with people. IRL ("in real life") is not overrated, and sometimes it is necessary to disconnect. Teens are never too old to go for a screen-free walk or dinner with their family!

Myanmar earns US$ 3.6 bln from CMP garment exports in 10 months

By Kyaw Htike Soe

MYANMAR fetched US$3.6 billion from the garment exports in the current financial year, a decrease of some US$60 million compared to the same period a year earlier, according to data from the Ministry of Commerce. Myanmar's textile sector generated US$3.675 billion in export revenue in the same period last year, the ministry's figures said.

At present, some garment factories shut down due to lack of raw material and thousands of workers became unemployed. Some garment factories in Myanmar have reduced working hours and cut jobs and some factories have not received orders from abroad amid the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic, U Myint Soe, Chairman of Myanmar Garment Manufacturers Association (MGMA) said. Myanmar's CMP (cut, make and pack) garment factories are facing financial hardships and struggling to survive due to the lack of orders from European Union market, he added. The European Union in April this year launched a €5 million (K7.9 billion) Myan Ku emergency cash fund to provide garment workers who have lost their jobs as a result of coronavirus pandemic.

Myanmar's garment export saw a five-fold increase in the number of workers in the past five years, according to the ministry. The country's garment production value has soared tenfold over the past four years, and it is expected to reach US$5 billion this year. The promising garment industry in Myanmar has grown significantly in the past five years. The country's export income from the garment and textile industry has increased almost threefold over the past two year. The CMP garment sector contributes to over 20 per cent to the country's exports. The total export earnings from Myanmar's garment and textile industry are expected to reach US$10 billion by 2024, according to the MGMA.

Myanmar's CMP garment sector earns about US$ 300 million annually and the country will get US$3 billion if it can manage to shift from the CMP system to the free-on-board (FOB) system. Myanmar's manufacturing sector is largely dependent on the CMP garment and textile exports. The MGMA estimates that over 500 factories in the country offer job opportunities for nearly 500,000 workers. Myanmar is considered one of the fastest-growing garment and footwear suppliers in the world, with apparel exports alone climbing from US$2.7 billion to US$3.86 billion last year. About 80 per cent of the new investments in the cut-make-pack (CMP) businesses in Myanmar came from China. Myanmar's garment and textile sector is said to be the right track to meet a target of US$10 billion in exports revenue set under a 10-year plan.

The export target and an aim to create one million job prospects in the sector had been designed under the Myanmar Garment Industry Strategic Plan 2014-2024 by the MGMA. The growth of Myanmar's garment and textile industry has materialized at a time when wages in other regional production hubs such as China, Vietnam and Cambodia have been hiked. Myanmar's CMP garments are mainly shipped to Japan and Europe, along with the Republic of Korea, China, and the US. The European Union (EU) is its biggest market, accounting for more than half of the country's ready-made garment exports. Myanmar's garment exports have been increasing yearly, especially since 2013, when the EU granted goods from the Southeast Asian country preferential access to its market.

Around 1.1 million Myanmar people are currently employed in garment, textile, footwear and accessories factories throughout the country. Additional tens of thousands indirectly work in the industry through logistics and transport services. Myanmar fetched some US$850 million from CMP garment exports in the fiscal year 2015-2016, US$2 billion in FY 2016-2017, US$2.5 billion in FY 2017-2018, and US$4.6 billion in FY 2018-2019.

Chrysanthemum growers earn good living from rising market

CHRYSANTHEMUM farmers in Amarapura Township, Mandalay Region, earned good incomes due to its high demand this year.

The market of Chrysanthemum, locally known as Gandamar flower, declined in November and December last year.

Currently, the wholesale price of a 15-flowers bunch of Shwe Wah Win Gandamar flower fetched K500, and Kyway Phyu Gandamar flower K600.

Ko Lin Thu, a flower grower, said an acre of Gandamar flower with 50,000 gandamar plants can earn up to K5million.

The plant of this flower needs to be watered since the first day of growing: three times a day in hot season and twice a day in cold weather.

They are fertilized every 15 days and can be sold at the market after three or four months old.

There are many species of Gandamar flowers, and the flower growers near Mandalay are mostly cultivating the species of San Bar, Kyway Phyu and Lucky, and each plant blooms 9 to 10 flowers.—Nwe Nadi ( Myitnge)

Europa League: Bruno Fernandes Penalty Lifts Manchester United Past Dogged Copenhagen

COLOGNE, Germany—Bruno Fernandes scored a penalty in extra time as Manchester United scraped past FC Copenhagen 1-0 on Monday in the quarter-finals of the Europa League, reshaped into an eight-team straight knockout tournament in Germany due to the coronavirus pandemic. The Portugal international notched his competition-best seventh goal of the season as United set up a semi-final clash against Sevilla or Wolves, joining Inter Milan in the last four following the Italian side's 2-1 victory over Bayer Leverkusen in Dusseldorf. "Third time this season we've been to the semis, every competition we've been in. Delighted we've gone through, we deserved to win tonight," United manager Ole Gunnar Solskjaer told BT Sport.

"Their keeper was fantastic, unbelievable. We hit the post a few times, there were a couple of VAR decisions against us. It could have been one of those nights that you end up with penalty shoot outs. They made it hard for us."

All games from the quarter-finals onwards in this season's Europa League are being played behind closed doors as one-off ties across four venues -- Cologne, Duisburg, Dusseldorf and Gelsenkirchen -- in a unique format following a five-month interruption.—AFP ■

Is this Neymar's time in the Champions League? Injury-hit PSG hope so

LISBON—Paris Saint-Germain have once again been hit by a flood of injuries going into a crunch Champions League knockout tie, but this time Neymar is fit and seemingly ready to live up to his status as the world's most expensive player.

PSG face Atalanta in Lisbon on Wednesday (Aug 12) in the first quarter-final of the "Final Eight", after UEFA turned the latter stages of Europe's elite club competition into something akin to a World Cup after the long COVID-19 shutdown.

There will be no fans in the Estadio da Luz, but the French champions coped just fine behind closed doors when they beat Borussia Dortmund in their last 16, second leg in March.

That night Neymar scored the opener in a 2-0 win as they overturned a first-leg deficit.

After the game, the Brazilian sat on a step high up in the stands at the Parc des Princes and cried tears of joy.

After all, his first two seasons in Paris following his €222 million (US$264 million) transfer from Barcelona were marred by injuries at the worst possible moments. First there was the broken metatarsal that saw him miss the last 16, second leg against Real Madrid in 2018 as PSG were knocked out by the reigning champions.—AFP ■
